INATI

– TO SHARE –

INATI – translated from te Reo Māori “to share” or to be exceptional & exciting.

It is a simple idea that guides us. Our menu is designed for the table, with plates to be passed, tasted, talked about and enjoyed together. The experience is not built around one person or one dish, but around connection.

Sharing also means acknowledging where our food comes from.

The ingredients we use are shaped by the people who grow, raise, catch, gather, make and deliver them. Their work is part of every plate we serve. Some are close to home, some are further afield, but each supplier helps us bring the INATI experience to the table.

On the reverse, you’ll find the producers and suppliers we are proud to work with.

They are part of the experience too.

The people listed here help shape what we are able to share.
